Climate Change: The Challenge

The climate crisis raging around the world challenges each of us to do whatever we can to help our children, our communities, and the planet.

Why is it not being taught in our schools?

As educators we have an opportunity to respond in a thoughtful, empathetic, action-oriented way. Innovation through education is the key to building a sustainable workforce and world.

Imagine what millions of new jobs in the green economy could mean for our communities and for our world. We must invest in climate education and sustainable workforce development now!

Responding to the Challenge

The Institute launched its Climate Education Teacher Training in response to the World Bank's Report, "CHOOSING OUR FUTURE: Education for Climate Action."

This report's findings emphasize the crucial role of educators to address climate change, empower young people, and build a sustainable workforce.

Education is the single strongest predictor of climate change awareness. It can play a catalytic role in climate change mitigation and adaptation by reshaping mindsets, behaviors, skills, and innovation.
